

Woodlands Trail & Park

The Woodlands Trail is a wonderful place
We should protect it and all its grace.
Down the trail and through the park,
What is it that sets these trees apart?

I veer off the trail and into the woods
Where I see old bunkers that housed the goods.

And look! An old sugar mill among the trees,
The ruins are hardly standing in the breeze.

The hardwood trees bend in their beauty,
They're luscious and magnificent - what a mystery!

The roots, so dangerously sticking out,
Looking for nutrients & water - no doubt!

A walk through these woods has plenty to see

Hungry birds fresh from the sea.
Osprey, Eagles, and even an Egret
They need this land that's no secret.

By:Karah Bergeron